THE LATE APPOINTMENTS.

Grant Moves in a Mysterions Way—
The Presidential Claquers in the Senate.

(From Mack's Letter to the Cincinnail Enquirer.)

Well, now that the Judges bave been appointed, they seem to provoke a great deal of angry comment, and great efforts are being made to defeat some of the nominations before the Senate. They will not be successful, bowever. The present Senate would confirm Satum as ambassador to the court of heaven if Grant would confirm Satum as ambassador to the court of heaven if Grant would nominate Satum if the family register didn't suggest a candidate. Against Mr. Yesaman, of Kentucky, it is urged that he nade a speech on the 18th of February, 1863, in which he said the Federal Congress was doing more than the Confederate Congress to make the rebellion a success. This would have sent almost anybody clase to Fort Lafayette, but it sent Mr. Yeaman as Minister to Denmerk, by the appointment of the late lamented, sainted Lincoln. The opponents of Mr. Yeaman for the office numbered many of the best lawyers in Ohlo and the other Santes included in the circuit; but Grant moves in a mysterious was again for some came unknown—and which gives its to the question: How much, and whicher it consisted in cash or town lots? They are after the geniteman from the Maryland circuit, too. Judge Bond, of Baltimore, who has done mean things enough to eatilie him to the best office in the gift of the Administration, is a defeated aspirant, and has waxed himself into a high pitch of indignation. Is aw a dispatch from him yesterday urging the rejection of the new appointee out the ground that he had been convicted by the United States Courts of destruding the overnment. A very foother protect that, and one sider for a moment. If every Radical who has defrauded the Government very to be excluded from office, the Senate itself would be immediately left without a querum, and the White House, which is just now illed by the greatest fraud on secord, would be vacated before night. for weak parties or operators on small margins.

THE GUNDATS.

An immense crowd has been lounging all day near the dock in the neighborhood of the thirty Spanish gunboats. The action of the Government in releasing them is openly denounced. One hundred and thirty men are guarding the boats from the land side. They stand among the loungers and not distinguishable, but all have revolvers and would make themselves known in case of trouble. From the water side the vessels are enclosed by floating booms, sixteen inches in diameter, extending along their onier tier, and the booms are so fastened that it would be impossible for a rowboat to pass outer tier, and the booms are so fastened that it would be impossible for a rowboat to pass between them. Should any ressel attempt to approach, she would be met by the tag Martin Kaibfelsch, which is armed with a twelve-pound Napoleon gun, and cruisos in the neighborhood. Capt. Casarage will command the entire fleet, which is to sail to-morrow. Some of the gunboats are getting up steam to-night, and as the night wears on the guards on the docks are doubled and the excitement among the crowd, mostly composed of exfilibusters, would-be fillbusters, and Cubans, is increasing.

EF The Cincinnati Times says that Mr. Golladay has "taken high Kentucky ground in favor of repudiation." But ground in favor of repudiation is not Kentucky ground. Those, who assume that it is, are guilty of an assumption utterly unauthorized by a shadow of fact. The Federal Government, as administered by the Radicals, is, however, a repudiator. It has repudiated the amount pledged to loyal Kentuckians in payment for their freed to reason a State of a non-flate according as her being reckoned the one or the other would subserve the partisan purpose of the hour? Yet, if he were a Savannah instead of a Richmond editor, the Message would be neither a better nor a worse message than it is now.

After all, the editor of the Whig seems with the state of the seems of the s repudiated the amount piedged to loyal Kentuckians in payment for their freed slaves. It has repudiated the immense sums due to tens of thousands of American citizens for war-claims. It has, in defance of its own pledge, repudiated the legal ten-ders of the country as payment for the ders of the country as payment for the Federal bonds. It has repudiated its pecuniary obligations at every turn and cor-ner, but Kentucky, though suffering from the Government's repudiation, is herself no repudiator. She is incomparably more observant of honesty and honor than the TARE AS A PREVENTIVE. The Reasons of its Superiority Over All Other Chill Remedies.

The Reasons of its Superiority Over All Other Chill Reasons.

Wintersmith's Tonie Strup or Improved Chill Cure is not only as ante-periodic, but acts upon the liver aiso, so that in cases where perions are billious, as indicated by sailow complexions, loss of appetite, &c., generally followed by chills and of appetite, &c., generally followed by chills and situations by continued or internatibing fever, the use of this tonic for a few days will entirely remove these symotoms, and show evidence of its efficiency by resistoring the mormal clearness of the complexion, and in an increased appetite and a restored health's action of the secretary organs. This is really the great advantage this tonic possesses over the so-called tonics now in use, the best of which are but suit-periodies, and whits they may break the chill, they do not remove the cause of the disease, but leave the system in as bad or in a worse condition than when first taken. The use of this medicine is therefore indicated in cases where persons are exposed to minamatic influences, and is as valuable in warding off stacks of bilious and other fevers as in curring chills and fevers. By the use of chioring or carbolic scid in the sleeping chambers, and a "proper use of Wintermulia" Tonic Strup as indicated by the symptoms, a person may live and only good health in the most malarious districts.

Musical.

A fair correspondent, whose musical tatte is expable of the highest cultivation, writes to know what she can play before connoisseurs and be sure of pleasing them. This is a rather delicate question, and to answer it properly we should know whether her andience is equally acquainted with the best music of the various schools. There is a fashion in made as in everything cise, and it changes just as other fashions do, is dress, manner or literature. The simplicity, melody and harmony of the first masters and composers, like Mozart and Bortionen, were followed by the brilliant and forid school of Rossini; then the light and sparking music of Auber; then the tender, plainfulve and dramatic music of Bollini and Doujactit; then the violent and noisy style of Verdi and the ponderous, deep and metaphysical school of Meyerbeer, and then, from this dury height, to the grotesque and laselyton trash of Offenbach, which was, like all nonsense, short-lived. Meanwhite, the great river of harmony kept on its simple and natural way, and has now found its tracest expression and noost intense effect in the grand and heantiful works of such masterplaces as the "Bonatz Pathetique." "Sonata Oras 24." and sion and most intense exect in the gration absentiful works of such masterpieces as the "Sonata Pathetique," "Sonata Opes 28," and the Eighth Symphony of Beethoven; the "Bongs without Words" of Mendelssohn, and his "Andante Capriciccioso;" the "Processades d'un Solitaire" of Stephen Heller; the Trancmerei, Nachtsuck, Schlummerlied, &c., peerage has ceased to be an attraction.

The New York dectors seem to have enjoyed themselves not a little over the remains of the late Albert D. Richardson. They took certam organs from his body, and had a brief, but very agreeable, debate over them in the rooms of the Pathological Society in Columbia College. The specimens presented, away it sun, were the following: "A portion of the liver, the entire stomach, a small section of the intestines and the integments, skin and fissh immediately sovering and surrounding the bullel wound, all of which were cither disturbed, lacerated or pierced through by the ball in its cratic course, after entering the pit of the stomach. These were all intelly preserved, and were displayed in mapkins and two last and all duly labeled." Mr. Beecher was not there to enjoy the fun.

The sire preceeds of the enterialment into the hands of the Mayor of the city for distribution. The enterplie is one which does credit to the magnanimity of Mr. Glover, and should ellett the patronage of all who are disposed to contribute to an object so worthy and needful of their charity. But saide from the purpose of the occasion mone present will fall to receive the full compensation for their outlay in the entertainment afforded. There will no doubt be a large, beautiful and brilliant a semblage.
